Here is my assessment of the program of work and the ability of the candidate(s) to carry it out.

Voici mon appréciation du programme de travail et de l'aptitude du (des) candidat(s) à le mener à bien.

The programme of label liberation appears to fulfil a deep seated need in today's society and may well help to bring a new awareness of the humanity of the individual in our even increasingly impersonal communities. The concept addresses itself to the root cause of much of the malaise that is prevalent particularly in communities and while on the surface it may appear naive it is in fact a simple expression of a wise and useful precept whose application equally valid in daily life as in the field of mental health where it has been so enthusiastically adopted.

Justin Thomas is the originator of this idea and has had the tenacity and determination to develop it and bring it to the point where it must now receive greater public diffusion if it is going to have any significant impact.

I have no doubt that he will persist and carry his project out; funds from a source like the Canada Council are, however, the only way in which he and his idea can receive the degree of public exposure that the idea merits.
